A teacher

takes a hand,

opens a mind,

and touches

a heart.

Dear Families,

Shhhh! It's a secret. We are going to surprise _____ with a special card.

Please trace your child's hand on the construction paper and have them cut it out. Assist them in writing a little note and remind them to sign it. These will be glued down, so please make sure everything is on the front.

I will be collecting them on _____, so I need this on or before that day.

Please put it back in the envelope. Thanks in advance for your help and cooperation.

Respectfully,

A teacher

Thank a Teacher!

Print the poster, mount on construction paper.

This is the front cover.

Send the note home.

You can make this a large card and glue some of the handprints on the front, or simply add extra pages for however many handprints you need to showcase.

Students will be super-excited to share this with their teacher. As a special presentation, each child could read their own handprint.

This free teacher card is part of my End-of-the-Year Appreciation Packet. It's just $2.00 in my TpT store.

Here are two
"Thanks a bunch!"
covers for a sweet card.

Poem I wrote for the inside of the card.

Glue your students' photos
inside the circles.

I "hinged" the front flap of the bus with a piece of Scotch tape, but you could staple it too.

The "grill" flips open to reveal the child's thank you note.

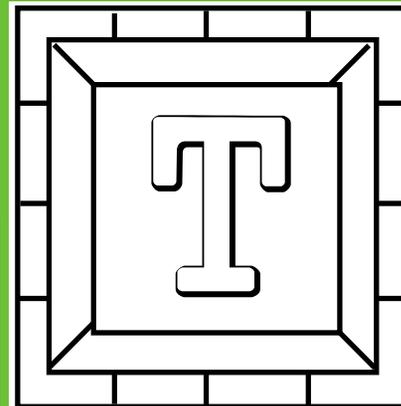

I designed this specifically for a bus driver, but you could use it for other school staff or helpers as well.

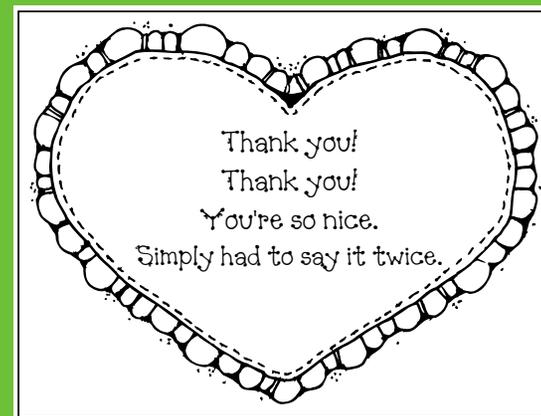

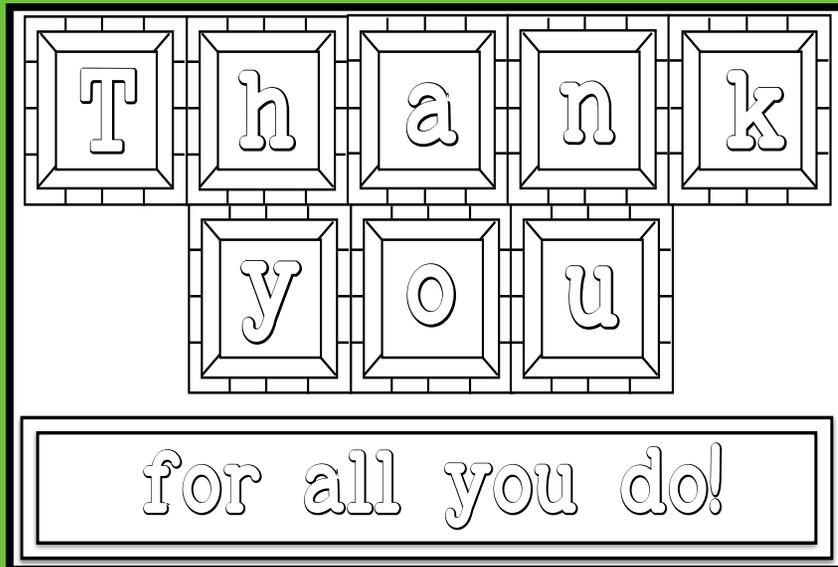

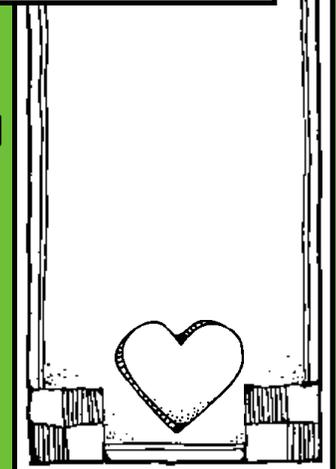

Thank you acrostic poem.

"Thank you for . . ." writing prompt bookmark and 2 worksheets.

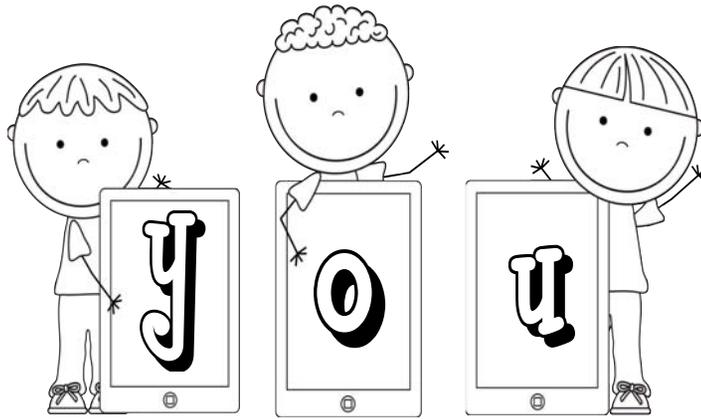

Large 8x10 letters that spell "Thank you!" 9 children hold one for a group photo.

Another option for inside your card.

2 sizes of "Thank you for all you do!" covers.

Another
"Thank you!"
cover option.
A large size,
plus 2-on-a-
page.

More thank you
writing prompt worksheets.

This "berry" special card is super-simple to make. I traced one of my student's hands for the leaves. The card flips up to reveal a photo of my class.

Signed with: "We appreciate you!

Love from, Mrs. Henderson's kindergarten class."

Everyone wrote their name on the back.
