Print, trim and trace on an old file folder to make a template. Trace once and then cut 3-6 mouse bodies and ears from a variety of colors of construction paper. Students fold the top portion down to make the mouse's head. They write their advice underneath. Punch a hole on the bottom right and tie on a yarn "tail." Glue on ears, add a pom pom nose and some wiggle eyes for that finishing touch. Completed projects make an adorable bulletin board for next year's students to read.

Welcome To School!
Here's Some Advice:

Advice is information,
or an opinion about what should be done
in a situation.

Here you are giving advice or tips
to new students.

You are using your experience
about the things you learned in school to help guide them.

Listen.

Follow directions.

Raise your hand.

Try your best.

Be polite.

Share.

Keep your hands to yourself.

Follow the rules.

Treat others the way you'd like to be treated.

Show respect.

Participate.

Stay in your seat.

Have fun!

Don't talk when the teacher is talking.

Don't interrupt.

Take care of your belongings.

Put things away.

Use kind words.

Fill a bucket.

Try.

Do your work.

Be honest.

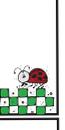

Be a friend.

Be kind.

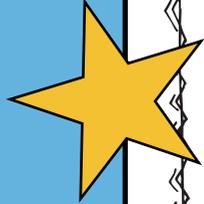

Be helpful.

Rules also offer some great advice. Sharing your classroom rules using this packet, is an interesting and fun way to introduce and explain them.

some advice they should take it!

Tips and Tidbits

Introduce the advice activities
with one of these posters.
Read Laura Numeroff's
"If you take a Mouse to School", or "If You Give a Mouse a Cookie".

To reinforce the rules/advice discuss what they learned & jot it down on this
"Tips & Tidbits" poster.

Thank You!

for all you do!

Thanks a bunch!

Thank you for...

Thank you! Thank you! You're so nice. Okay, I had to say it twice!

You've touched our lives with kindness. You've helped us with our needs. Words don't seem quite sufficient for all your helpful deeds.

We really do appreciate much more than words can describe. How very much you help us and brighten up our day.
