For your convenience, I've included a preview.

"Taco 'bout" Fun!

Writing Prompt Craftivity

Third grade was excellent because I made a lot of new friends like Conrad and Joshua.

We got to go to the art museum on a fieldtrip.

We did some awesome science experiments. I especially enjoyed seeing our volcano erupt!

We had computers, music, art and Spanish for specials.

Celebrating 100 Day was also great.

You are a good friend.

You are nice. I like you.

You share.

You are fun to be with.

You are pretty.

You wear cute clothes.

You are kind to me.

You are smart.

Compliment Taco.

Great "bucket filler" too.
Each student glues their colorful taco "stuffing strips" inside their taco.

Children get in a group of 8 to pass around their tacos; 7 students and the teacher each write something nice on a strip to complete their "compliment taco".

Taco Talk Compliments

Directions:

This is a very versatile "craftivity." You can use it at the end of the year to help build a child's confidence, or at the beginning of the year as a "bucket-filler" activity, by using the "Taco" 'bout a nice amigo/amiga, _____ is terrífico!

Run off the "taco shell" on light brown construction paper. Students cut it out, fold it in half and write their name in the blank. For extra pizzazz add some dots with a brown crayon or marker.

To make the "lettuce" I put a few sheets of green construction paper (one at a time) into my shredder. Have students rub some glue on the top and bottom of the inside of their "taco shell" and glue on some "lettuce".

Cut strips of red, yellow, and orange construction paper. Have students make an ABCABC pattern by gluing the strips INSIDE their "taco shell." Open up the shell so that you can see the front and rip the ends of the strips at various lengths, so just a bit is peeking out of the edge.

Put students in groups of 8. Children exchange their taco with someone in their group, who writes a compliment inside their taco on one of the colored strips. They continue to pass the tacos around 'til everyone in the group has signed everybody's taco. Seven strips will have been signed. The 8th strip is for the teacher to write something.

Give students a few minutes to read their taco and then collect them. You can scatter them on a bright yellow background, with a fiesta or chili pepper border, or place each one on a variety of hot-colored plates and then scatter those, or use them as a border with the caption: "Taco Talk" in the middle.

(I've included letters for you to run off on a variety of colors of construction paper, trim and then arrange to spell Taco Talk!) Hang a piñata from the ceiling, on the side of the board for that finishing touch.

Make "lettuce"
with a paper
shredder.

#1 Glue lettuce to the top and bottom.

#2 Glue strips in an
ABCABC pattern.

#3 Tear edges.

#4 Exchange with 8 people
who write a compliment on a strip.

#3

Fold back up.
