We Know Our Vowels
To the tune of BINGO

There were some students who knew their vowels
and this is what they sang oh
A-E-I-O-U
a-e-i-o-u
A-E-I-O-U
and they were very smart oh!

I use white plastic Dixie cups and simply stack and save them, so I can use them each year.

I printed in color, laminated & trimmed my word card pages and my short/long vowel signs.

I attached them with large white paperclips.

When I'm done with this center, I toss all the laminated pieces in a Ziplock Baggie and file it with my Seuss unit.

You can use these as an independent center, or make a class set of 5-6, so that you can do this as a whole group activity. I put a set at each of my 5 student tables. They work in groups of 6 to sort and record their answers in their workbook.

For another whole group activity I pass out X amount of cards.

Hang the vowel cups on your white board by attaching a magnet to the back of a clothespin, then clip the cup to the clothespin.

You can do each vowel separately, or simply call on students to read 1-2 words, then put them in the appropriate cups.

Directions: Color or use a bingo-dot marker to show all of the vowels.

Print, laminate & trim. Attach a magnet or Velcro dot to the back so that you can use on a white board or a flannel board.

I use BINGO songs to help my students practice letters, listening & following directions, rhythm, rhyme, clapping a beat, spelling, plus subtraction!

- This is the word booklet that I make for my students.
- They get to select X amount of word cards then write the words on the appropriate pages.
- I have them choose two different color markers, so that they can write their words in an ABAB color pattern.
- You can also have your students write their words on a sheet of scratch paper, then write the words in alphabetical order in their booklets.
- I purposely put a black and white cat in the packet, so that you could use it at the beginning of the year for a "Pete the Cat" activity, then revisit again in spring with a "Cat in the Hat" theme.
- For more word practice, have students turn their booklets horizontally, and write sentences using the words.

Fold & glue to a large craft stick.

These are the options for the "Popsicle stick Puppet Paddle".

You read a word from one of the 10 alphabetical word lists.

Children listen carefully and decide if the vowel is long or short then flip their paddle to show you their answer.

You can see at a glance who is having difficulty.

I also pass out the word cards and give each child a turn to come up and read their word. Students flip their paddles, then the "it" child shows everyone the correct answer with her/his paddle.
