Here's Some Other Things You Can Do With The Cards:

- You can also use these Mini Flashcards for games, pocket cards, and other things you might think of. Run them off on different colors of construction paper and laminate them.
- Rubber band them and make them into concentration-match games, and file folder games.
- Stick a magnet or piece of Velcro on the back and use them on a flannel or magnet board.
- Have children make sentences with them.
- Punch a hole in the corner and put them on a split ring. Keep the ring of cards by your Story Time chair. Play “Flash!”
“Flash” the card quickly and see who can “Flash” their hand up the fastest to identify what the word is. Give that child the card off the split ring to hold. The child at the end of the round of Flash, who has the most cards is the winner.
- Have a room helper make these cards up for you
- Make non-laminated sets and send them home in a baggie for parents to help work on a word-a-week with their child. Have them post a card on the fridge.
- Put them up on the wall as your word wall words.
- Use a flash light to spy them in the dark. Paint them with glow paint and they will glow in the dark.
- I bought a big plastic laser during Halloween time and my students love using that to point to the words.
- I have them play ABCDe-tective and I toss the words all over the room and they run around and find them. We sit in a circle and they have to identify the ones they found. If they can't they hold it up and the first one to spy it correctly gets that card.
- You can run them off on copy paper and glue them to seasonal die-cut shapes for each month. i.e., apples for September, pumpkins for October, leaves or acorns for November etc. and then display them in your room like that or decorate a tree that stays up on your bulletin board or wall all year.
- Have your students sit in a circle. Put them in a brown lunchbag or lunch box. Tell your students you are going to “Munch some words before lunch. (Crunch-munch a bunch of sight words for lunch!) and pass the bag/box. Let the children pick one out and read it. If they read it correctly they get a sticker or an “I’m a Sight Word Smartie! (These are Smartie candies.

Sometime I give I'm my students a Super Sight Word "Kiddle" and I give them a Skittle!

- Play a version of Musical Chairs. When the music stops they have to read the sight word on their chair, if they can't they're out.
- Play "Hot Sight Word!" Children sit in a circle. Pass around 2 or 3 sight words. When the music stops the children holding the sight words have to read them and are out.
- Play "What's Missing?" Put a laminated circle in the middle of your circle. Put 3 sight words on the circle to start. Have the children close their eyes. Take one sight word away. Have them open their eyes and the first one to tell you which sight word is missing gets a sticker. Add another sight word to the circle and continue the game 'til you have 10 sight words on your circle mat.
- Pass out envelopes of your sight words to each of your tables. Ask each child at the table to hold up their sight word and identify it. If a child cannot identify their sight word, move on to the next table. The table that identifies all of their sight words gets stickers. After all the tables have been given a try, have the children put the sight words back in their envelopes and exchange table envelopes, then play again.
- Make some sentence strips up with the sight words and put those sight words in an envelope with the sentence strip. Have the children make the sentence with the words and then have them trace and write the sentence on a separate sheet of paper, or on an erasable paper that you've laminated and also included in the envelope.
- If you think of some other things, please share and I'll add them to our list. Thanks in advance. ☺
- The sight word Mini Flash Cards go hand-in-hand with the skill sheets and Easy Reader Booklets. Children enjoy being able to read the little booklets after working on their skill sheets. They build self-esteem and they are fun for them to take home and share with their families.
- The "Jumble Word Cards". are also inter-changeable with the Mini Flashcards.
- The possibilities of activities are endless. As always, I'd love hearing how you use them with your students and any way I can improve them or anything else you're looking for. It's truly my desire to help.
