Run off 2 of these. They will go at the beginning and end of your banner. Fill in your name and the grade of your kiddo's. i.e. "Happy 100 Day from Mrs. Henderson's 100-year-old kindergarteners. Be sure and make an oval of yourself to add to the banner.

Print, cut and trace a template onto an old file folder.
Trace once and then cut 3-6 at a time, out of a variety of colors of construction paper. Students choose one and glue their picture of what they think they will look like when they are 100-years-old to the oval.
You could also take their photo and use the "Oldify" AP, print and have them put their real aged-photo on the pennant.
Punch a hole in the top corners and tie the pennants together for an awesome wall display.

Run the ovals off on white construction paper.
Rough cut. Students trim into the oval shape and draw a self-portrait of what they think they will look like if they live to be 100.
They choose a colored banner and glue their picture to the center.

After a few hours of research, I found that the '2 best Apps for aging a photo are: Aging Booth and Oldify. Both are .99 cents. They are both ranked with 5 stars. Since Oldify had over 6,000 positive reviews I downloaded that one.

With Oldify you can record your voice and the aged photo will talk., blink, yawn and act "real." For only a buck, I think either one is worth a try for some interesting fun for your 100-Day celebration.
