Shorter sentences.

Pictured above, are the 2-on-a-page patterns. There are also larger, full page patterns, which are pictured on the right. These come lined & with traceable text. In these samples the students are wearing their masks, so they wrote the rules for being a germ fighter.

You can also have students write their superhero name on this smaller pattern.

Here the students are not wearing their masks. I think a photo makes things more personal; however, students can also draw their own faces.

The name bubbles come in color + B&W, with small & large options.

Name Cards for Superhero GIRLS with lines.

There are all sorts of "What is your _____ name?" activities on the Internet, such as "Pirate"; so I thought it would be fun to create my own Superhero one. Since my kiddos are working on identifying letters, plus recognizing & writing their names, this is especially worthwhile, and a lot of fun.

To find out their superhero name, older students find the initial of their 1st name on poster #1, then choose one adjective. They also choose one noun from poster #2, which matches the initial of their last name.

Younger kiddos can do this as a homework/online assignment with parental help, or you can write down their superhero name, while they practice writing their real name.

I've included (easy-cut) onomatopoeia "call outs" to enhance your display.
